With the power of the wolves

- The story of a remarkable healing
- Touching and absorbing story
- Already much in demand on talk shows and in print media

She lives in the Canadian wilderness, follows the trail of the coastal wolves, and spends an entire afternoon in the midst of a pack of wild wolves – a true sensation. For wildlife biologist Gudrun Pflüger, her encounters with wolves provide an inexhaustible source of optimism and trust. When diagnosed with an aggressive brain tumor, Pflüger was told she had eighteen months left to live. Taking the wolf – a true “endurance athlete” – as her model, she trusts in her own powers of self-healing and overcomes her illness.

In this book, Gudrun Pflüger tells her touching, absorbing story, a story that imparts much more than just a wilderness adventure. It is a testament to the healing power of nature.

About the author

Gudrun Pflüger, a former professional cross-country skier and mountain jogger, is also a certified biologist. After retiring from athletics, she relocated to Canada, where she became involved in the protection and conservation of British Columbia’s coastal wolf population. Her research has been documented in the much lauded, award-winning film Searching for the Coast Wolves. She lives near Salzburg, Austria, with her son Conrad, and advocates for the acceptance of wolves in her homeland.
