- a passionate encouragement to interfere
- entertaining, challenging and full of wit

Jürgen Moltmann is known as the political theologian with social and religious relevance. His very unique profile, his special powers of conviction and ability to convince others, and last but not least, his comprehensive body of theological work (Theologie der Hoffnung, Gott in der Schöpfung, Der lebendige Gott and die Fülle des Lebens) have had considerable impact on thought and actions in German society and internationally for decades. Now he sets priorities, once again.

On the occasion of his 90th birthday, Eckart Löhr reflects with Jürgen Moltmann on Moltmann's eventful theological and political life. Openly and warmly, Moltmann provides insight into his roots, his political awakening, and his efforts toward a contemporary theology for our time. Current questions and a look into the future of our society are at the forefront of their conversation.

This moving book is a tribute to a bold Christian who has witnessed an entire century.
